DETAILED ACTION

Response to Amendment

1. Applicant's amendment filed 17 October 2008 amends claims 1, 18, 35, and 52. Claims 53-54 have been cancelled. Claim 55 has been added. Applicant's amendment has been fully considered and entered.

Response to Arguments

2. Applicant argues, "applicant notes that the term 'tangible computer readable medium' is to read according to the plain and ordinary meaning thereof, in view of dictionary definitions, and in further view of the definitions provided in the Specification." In response, the Examiner would like to point out that the specification contains no definition of "computer readable medium". The phrase "computer readable medium," is not found to have proper antecedent basis in the specification, however it is necessary to use this terminology in order to properly define the claim within the boundaries of statutory subject matter, because the phrase "computer readable medium," appears to only reasonably convey hardware storage and forms of portable, physical article media to one of ordinary skill in the art. In order to overcome the objection, an amendment to the specification is necessary constituting a non-exhaustive statement of what the phrase "computer readable medium" would be as it would have been known to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention, in order to verify that the term "computer readable medium," could not be taken in the context of non-statutory subject matter.

3. Applicant argues, "applicant respectfully asserted that the association is stronger than it would be without the modification of the set of rules...which is clearly definite." This argument is not persuasive because the term "more strongly associated" is not defined by the claim, the specification does not provide a standard for ascertaining the requisite degree, and one of ordinary skill in the art would not be reasonably apprised of the scope of the invention.

4. Applicant's arguments with respect to van der Made have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Specification

5. The specification is objected to as failing to provide proper antecedent basis for the claimed subject matter. See 37 CFR 1.75(d)(1) and MPEP § 608.01(o). Correction of the following is required: The phrase "computer readable medium," is not found to have proper antecedent basis in the specification, however it is necessary to use this terminology in order to properly define the claim within the boundaries of statutory subject matter, because the phrase "computer readable medium," appears to only reasonably convey hardware storage and forms of portable, physical article media to one of ordinary skill in the art. In order to overcome the objection, an amendment to the specification is necessary constituting a non-exhaustive statement of what the phrase "computer readable medium" would be as it would have been known to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention, in order to verify that the term "computer readable medium," could not be taken in the context of non-statutory subject matter.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

6. The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

7. Claims 1, 3-13, 15-18, 20-30, 32-35, 37-47, 49-52, 55 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the enablement requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to enable one skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and/or use the invention. The specification does not disclose how to detect whether the modified set of rules decreases malicious network traffic or slows malware propagation. Furthermore, it is unclear how modified rules in one particular system has any effect on the amount of malicious traffic or the amount of propagated malware.

8. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

9. Claims 1, 3-13, 15-18, 20-30, 32-35, 37-47, 49-52, 55 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

10. The term "more strongly associated" in claims 1, 18, and 35 is a relative term which renders the claims indefinite. The term "more strongly associated" is not defined by the claim, the specification does not provide a standard for ascertaining the requisite degree, and one of ordinary skill in the art would not be reasonably apprised of the scope of the invention.

11. Additionally, it is unclear how modifying "said set of rules" has any effect on a set of program calls that has already been logged, or the amount of malicious network traffic and malware propagation.

12. The term "higher-level" in claim 55 is a relative term which renders the claim indefinite. The term "higher-level" is not defined by the claim, the specification does not provide a standard for ascertaining the requisite degree, and one of ordinary skill in the art would not be reasonably apprised of the scope of the invention.
